ST. The Senate.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.
WASHINGTON, March 24.—The memorials from the legislature of Arizona, praying for a return to the public domain of lands granted the railroads in that territory and for legislation to prevent organized raids from Mexico, were referred.

The senate was then cleared and the doors closed. It was supposed the Well and LaBrea treaty was taken up. A large pile of sheep-skin covered books lay upon Morgan's desk and it is presumed he will consume the day with a speech in favor of the treaty.

A Good Word for Fish.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.
NEW YORK, March 24.—The trial of ex-President James D. Fish, of the Marine bank, continued to-day. The prosecution closed yesterday and the defense opened this morning and moved for a dismissal of the charges against Fish on the ground that no offense had been proved. In the opinion of the counsel it would not be necessary to put a single witness upon the stand in defense of the acts of his client. The defendant was not guilty of any of the counts in the indictments. What the president of a bank may do within the scope of his administration may be maladministration, but it did not come under the limitation of the statutes. There must be a misappropriation of the funds of the institution to make the action criminal.

The Union Pacific Road.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.
WASHINGTON, March 24.—The report of the commissioner of railroads on the Union Pacific railroad, as revealed by the company's books, shows there was due the United States for the year 1884, under the Thurman act, $1,135,220, against which there was credited for government transportation, etc., $3,135,173, leaving $47 due the government for the year. President Adams says the company will pay promptly. Nine hundred and seventeen thousand dollars were adjudged due the government by the court of claims.

POLYGAMY CASES.

A decision was rendered by the supreme court of the United States today in a series of five cases known as the polygamy cases, brought by certain Mormon citizens of Utah for the purpose of getting a judicial decision as to the board of commissioners or canvassers appointed under the so-called Edmund's act of March 22, 1882, to supervise elections in that territory. The complainants and appellants in these cases are Jesse J. Murphy, Mary Ann M. Pratt, Mildred E. and Alfred Randall, Ellen C. and Hiram B. Clawson and James M. Barlow. The defendants and appellees are: Alex Ramsey and others, constituting the federal board of commissioners and certain registration officers appointed by them. The principal question raised by the suits is whether the board of commissioners appointed under the Edmund's act had power to prescribe as a condition of the legislation of voters, a discriminating test oath, requiring an applicant for registration to swear (if a man) that he is not a bigamist or polygamist and does not live or co-habit with more than one woman in marriage relation, or (if a woman) that she is not the wife of a polygamist and has not entered into any relation with any man in violation of the laws of the United States concerning polygamy or bigamy. This court holds that the rules promulgated by the board in prescribing the form of oath to be exacted to persons offering to register as voters, and which constitute the directions under which, it is alleged, the registration officers acted in the cases here complained of, were without force, and that no effect can be given them.

"It cannot be alleged," the court holds, "that they had the effect in law of preventing the registration of the plaintiffs, for the registration officers were not bound or authorized to obey them, and if they did so, they did it in their own wrong. There was no relation between the board and the officers appointed by them of the principal and agent so as to make the members of the former liable for what the latter may have illegally done under their instructions, and therefore there is no connection in law between the acts of the board as charged and the wrongs complained of. If it be supposed, that the board had power, which it seems they claimed and exercised, of putting into form rules for the government of the registration officers, their interpretation of the law, and in that way published, was an erroneous and illegal restriction upon the rights of suffrage in the territory. Such acts of administration were not ministerial and cannot be made ground for action. They would be of that class which involve exercise, judgement and discretion in public officers, and which, even when erroneous, can not furnish a cause of action for damages. In either view, therefore, the judgement in favor of the board of commissioners, in the court below, was rightly rendered."

As regards the right of responsibility of the registration officers, the court holds that they were merely ministerial officers, and if they were deprived by the complainants of their right to be registered as voters in violation of the law, they are responsible for the action in damages. The court then takes up and examines the cases separately and holds that the complainants, Mary Ann Pratt and Mildred E. Randall were clearly deprived of their right to registration without authority, since by their allegations they exclude themselves from the disqualifications of the act of 1882. Ellen C. Clawson, Jesse J. Murphy and James M. Barlow, on the other hand, were, the court holds, included in the disqualifications of the act and had no right to registration. In reaching these conclusions, in its opinion, makes an elaborate review of the act of 1882, giving the construction to some of its provisions and showing how they apply to the present cases. By the act of 1882, the court holds, it is made the duty of the registration officers to see that persons offering to register are free from the disqualifications defined therein. In so doing they are required to exercise diligence and good faith in their enquiries, and are responsible in damages for rejections made without reasonable cause or maliciously. In the cases of Mary Ann Pratt and Mildred E. Randall, the above referred to allegations of the complainants not only show that the complainants were legally entitled to register as voters, but it declares that the refusal of the registration officers to admit them to the list was wrongful and malicious. The court holds that the case is as thus stated, and should therefore have been overruled.

Receiver Appointed.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 22.—The Mercantile Trust company, H. W. Ford and Thomas C. Buckley, all of New York, trustees of mortgages aggregating $9,000,000 given by the Pittsburgh & Western and the Pittsburgh, Bradford & Buffalo railroad companies, made an application before Judge Acheson, of the United States circuit court, this morning, for the appointment of receivers, and James Callery and John W. Chalfant, of Pittsburgh, were designated by the court. The proceedings, which have been agreed to by stock and bondholders and all parties interested, were for the purpose of preventing the floating debt creditors from breaking up the road. The floating debt is $2,000,000, and an execution of $50,000 has been issued. A permanent master will be appointed later to take charge and audit the accounts of the receivers.

To-day's action is the result of the application of another road for the payment of the floating debt, and no interest to be paid until the debt is liquidated. The powers of the receivers will extend to the management of the Pittsburgh, Cleveland & Toledo railroad, which is regarded as the most valuable of the leased part of the Pittsburgh & Western company. Callery is president of the Pittsburgh & Western Chalfant a large bondholder.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Judge Gresham, in the United States circuit court, this morning granted a writ of error in the case of Mackin and Gallagher, convicted of election frauds. They were admitted to bail in the sum of $15,000 each and were released from jail.

In reviewing the case Judge Gresham said that after an examination of the records of the district court he considered the question raised sufficiently grave to warrant him to grant a writ of error, which would also operate as a stay of proceedings. This ruling, however, was not to be taken that he would over rule the findings of the district court on the final hearing. In the granting of the proceedings he would deem it necessary to increase the bail of the defendants to $50,000.

Mike McDonald, the gambler, qualified as chief bondsman and testified he owned $500,000 worth of real estate unincumbered.

The time for sending the two men to the penitentiary expired at noon to-day, and if a writ had not been granted they would have been taken to Joliet. The time for the hearing of the writ of error has not yet been fixed upon.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

"THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME."

The New York board of health estimates that 30,000 lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum. If every house hold would adopt the White Seal Oil for family use, none of these unfortunate accidents would occur.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

has none of the defects usually found in common oil. It cannot be exploded, does not char the wick, will not smoke, emits no offensive odor, and prevents the breaking of chimneys.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

is a rich oil for illuminating purposes. It is as light in color as pure water. It gives a strong steady light, and burns much longer than common oil.

Matrimonial Infidelity

The Sharpe family had a rough time of it. Mrs. Sharpe applied for a divorce from Mr. Sharpe. Then Mr. Sharpe applied for a divorce from Mrs. Sharpe. Neither of the applications was granted. Thereupon the Sharpes separated, and began to quarrel for the custody of the children. The whole infelicitous business was caused by indignation, which had sown the seeds of the belligerent parties. Brown's Iron Bitters tones up the digestive organs and enables people to eat joyfully and be happy. It is not a costly experiment to see what a dollar bottle of this medicine will do to promote family harmony.

A Dynamite Story.
(Madison Democrat.)

"Talk about dynamite, I can tell you a true story of what nitro-glycerine once did to our state. It was out near Prairie du Chien, where they were blasting on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. The contractor had several kegs of the stuff in an underground place. One day a workman left the place open; by-and-by a hog came along, found a keg open, and as glycerine is as sweet almost as honey, the animal filled himself. He came out by-and-by, and soon wandered into a stable which contained about 40 horses belonging to the contractor. The hog got footing around the horses' hind legs, when one of them drew off and gave Mr. Hog a good one. The concussion started the business, and not a vestige was over discovered of the hog or of a single horse or the stable. And where the stable once stood there was a hole in the earth 50 feet deep and 300 feet in circumference. Fact, gentlemen!"

CYRUS W. FIELD.

Cyrus W. Field belongs to a distinguished family. One of his brothers is a judge, another stands at the head of the New York bar, and another is the editor and owner of the New York Evangelist. Cyrus has linked the old world with the new, and "gathered the nations in a group" with the submarine telegraph. He has won wide celebrity and fortune, and is a millionaire. He was born in 1820 in the town of Stockbridge, Mass., where he was educated, and had for his school companions the Sedgewicks and others who became noted in the world of letters and politics. When 18 years of age he was employed in New York in A. T. Stewart's dry goods store, whence, after one year of service, he went to Lee, Mass., and engaged as a clerk in the office of his brother, Matthew Field. Eighteen months later he went to Westfield, Mass., and became the junior partner of E. Root & Co.'s paper firm, which failed a few years afterward and left Mr. Field deeply in debt. His next venture was the opening of a paper commission house in New York, at which time he was his own porter, clerk, cashier and bow. He was very exact, methodical and prompt. At noon, no matter who was present, he would spread a napkin on his desk, and partake of his lunch from a tin pail. It ten years he built up an immense business, paid his Westfield creditors, principal and interest, bought the home on which his father lived as a tenant, and presented it to his wife. The greatest event of his life, however, was the laying of the Atlantic cable, to construct which he crossed the ocean almost as many times as the weaver spider passes from point to point when building its bridge of gossamer. His later work, in which he is at present engaged, and may give him a still greater place in history, is the application of electricity as the motive power for railroads in cities, a public exhibition of which is forthcoming.

"The Avenging Hero of Massachusetts."

THE LATE SERGEANT THOMAS PLUNKETT.

The recent death of Sergeant Plunkett removes one of the noted heroes of the war. For many years he has been in charge of the cloak room of the Massachusetts legislature, his mutilated figure being a familiar one in the State House in Boston. He leaves a widow and two sons.

Sergeant Thomas Plunkett was born in Ireland in October, 1830, and when an infant came to this country with his parents, who settled in Massachusetts, where he grew up and became respected for his habits of industry. When the call for troops came in 1861 he enlisted as a private in the Twenty-first Massachusetts Regiment. He was a good soldier, obedient to orders and faithful in the discharge of every duty, but he little knew what sacrifices he would be called upon to make for the land of his adoption. In all of the many important battles in which his regiment was engaged, Sergeant Plunkett distinguished himself by his gallantry. He was the hero of many incidents of individual intrepidity. But it was at the battle of Fredericksburg that Sergeant Plunkett performed the crowning act of heroism that gave him his fame and left him the "armless hero of Massachusetts."

The Twenty-first Massachusetts took part in the terrible battle at Fredericksburg, and in the thick of the fight the color bearer was shot, and as the regiment was falling back, Comrade Plunkett, seeing the standard fall to the ground, sprang forward, and seizing it waved it high in the air as a rallying point for the command. In an instant the color fell from his strong right hand, for a bullet had shattered the elbow. With his right arm hanging useless by his side, he grasped the falling color with his left hand, and facing the enemy, slowly fell back. In a few minutes he received another shot which shattered the left arm, thus completely disabling him. But with a heroism that was born of a determination to do his whole duty, he pressed both arms, now rendered useless, around the flag and bore it off the field, hating it with his blood. Soon after Sergeant Plunkett's heroic act became known to the state authorities. Adj. Gen. Schenck suggested to Gov. Andrew that the sergeant be commissioned. The governor replied: "No; it is better that he be known in history as Sergeant Plunkett."

All Down.

"Good morning, Johnny," said the Methodist preacher, riding up to a small boy sitting on the fence in front of a Kentucky farm-house and whistling. "Wait till the Clouds Roll By."

"Mornin'," replied the boy, eyeing the preacher's scrub horse narrowly. "Are the folks all well this morning?"

"Naw." "Who's sick?" "Jim, he's down with the measles; Mary, she's down with the mumps; Sal, she's down with the raller jammers; Sam, he's down with the fever; Mordecai, he's down with the chills; and the boy stopped to take breath. "Why, my Johnny, you must be having a hard time at your house." "Yes, rather tough for good Methodists." "Is there any one else sick?" "Yes, mother; she's down, too." "No, you don't say so? What's she down with?" "Oh, she's down with the neighbors in the front room helpin' lay pap out." "Your father dead?" "Yes, the old man gime his last lickin' yistidday mornin'." "This is terrible," groaned the preacher: "is there anykidy else down?" "Yes, Bob and Hezekiah's down with the dogs in the woods behind the truck patch ketchin' a con for dinner. Mother's expectin' yer, an' she told me to set out here an' wait till you come along."—Merchant Traveler.

O, my back! That lame back is caused by kidney disease. Stop it at once by Hunt's Kidney and Liver Remedy.

Good news ought to be told; and it is good news that Hunt's Remedy has cured the worst of kidney diseases, and can do it again.

The Cheyenne Live Stock Journal reviews at considerable length an article recently published in the New York Sun, and criticizes and refutes the assertions of Mr. Wilkeson, its author, who charged that the "Western man holds his Eastern brother in profound contempt. He does not like his ways, or speech, or clothes. He considers it to be legitimate to loot him. For Western men, who may deal squarely with each other never deal squarely with a 'tenderfoot.'" He made many other equally untrue statements.

Do you wish freedom from aches, pains, sores, etc? Then purify the blood and strengthen the urinary and digestive organs and build up your broken down constitution by using Dr. Guyott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It is gratifying to know that among intelligent communities this simple, harmless, yet effective remedy sells faster than the many bitters, iron medicines and pretended kidney cures, all of which rapidly weaken and ruin the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, by exciting these delicate organs to unnatural activity.

Woman's Suffering and Relief.

Those languid, throe-like sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its force; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and nervous, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system, are relieved at once while the special cause of periodical pain is permanently removed. Since I took Hop Bitters, all my ailments are gone. I feel better, and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women.

A Postal Card Story.

By examining the files of THE SENTINEL of April 28th, 1883, we find in the proceedings of the primary election for delegates the following item:

"The voters were almost unanimously in favor of nominations by popular vote and that plan will be adopted hereafter."

The democratic city central committee should meet at once and take action in regard to this matter, as there seems to be a difference of opinion in regard to the plan of nomination between democrats.

The city committee is composed of the following gentlemen:

First ward—Henry Mouning.

Second ward—Michael Walsh.

Third ward—A. Wolf.

Fourth ward—Gust Laufenau.

Fifth ward—Henry Linderman.

Sixth ward—Timothy Hogan.

Seventh ward—Peter J. Scheid.

Eighth ward—John Kruok.

Ninth ward—Fred C. Bollz.

LOVES FLEE.

A Wabash Youth Feels an Obstinate Uncle and Weds His Pretty Niece in Michigan.

The village of Wabash is just now excited over the elopement of two young people who are known in Fort Wayne.

Tom Kline and Miss Mary Coons eloped last Sunday morning. The story of their love is romantic. Miss Coons is an orphan, and has been making her home with Jacob Coons, her uncle, an old citizen, who sought to discourage the attentions to his pretty niece by the young men of the neighborhood. Kline persisted in his wooing, however, and Sunday morning Miss Coons and a lady friend set out for Urbana to visit relatives.

Kline boarded the same train, and when Urbana was reached Miss Coons' friend left the car, supposing that she would follow. Instead, however, Miss Coons slipped into a seat with Kline, and the train pulled out leaving her friend on the platform, while Kline and his innamorata proceeded to Niles, Mich., where they were duly married, returning to Wabash last night to receive the blessings of the uncle. At first the old gentleman was indignant, but he finally yielded, and the pair are now snugly domiciled beneath his roof-tree. Miss Coons visited a young lady friend on West Wayne street last summer and is as pretty as a peach.

AMATEUR MOURNS.

Henry L. Hamel, the East Main street Green, arrested for betraying Elizabeth Heberer.

This morning and elderly lady, carrying a babe in her arms, stepped off a Wabash train and made her way enquiringly to the grocery store of Henry L. Hamel, in the old star bakery building on east Main street. There she confronted her betrayer and the father of the child she held in her arms, but Hamel turned from her coldly and ordered the woman from his store. She sought Deputy Prosecutor Bittenger and for her the officer drew up an affidavit charging Hamel with her betrayal and the paternity of her child. Hamel was arrested and taken before Mayor Zollinger. He was still stubborn and refused to make matrimonial reparation. The mayor put him under $500 bonds to await trial, and as he could not put up the cash he went to jail. The woman came to this country from Germany two years ago and located at Peoria. There Hamel met and betrayed her under promise of marriage. They lived on promises and bliss until about a year ago, when he left Peoria and came here. The woman wrote to him and for a time he replied. Her last letter he returned and this forced a climax. Elizabeth is thirty-two and comely, while Hamel is forty and worth some money. He says he gave the woman $100 a year ago, and further refuses to lift his "roll," which Miss Heberer says he keeps in two banks.

Successful Temperance.

Again a large and attentive audience gathered in the Third Presbyterian church to listen to James Dunn on the subject of temperance. Short speeches were made by ministers and others, all of which contributed its mite to the success of the meeting. Mr. Dunn is a thoroughly earnest worker, and each evening develops something new and pleasing in his way of explaining the work and the best method for making it a progressive one. To-night and every night until further notice meetings will be held in the same house. Come every body.

DOUBLE HEADERS SMASHED.

Pittsburg Freight Trains Collide and Knock a Five Thousand Dollars Into Dust—Cattle Killed.

Early this morning two double headed freight trains had a face collision this side of Chicago. The telegraph operator neglected to give orders to the passing trains and his promotion awaits him. The four freight engines came together with a terrific crash, smashing two pilots and tenders into bits. A freight car loaded with cattle was splintered and ten head of stock were killed, while the rest were maimed. The engineers and firemen leaped for their lives, and escaped injury. The road was blocked by the debris for six hours and passenger train No. 3 came here late. The damage will run up to about $2,000, and the company has no recourse but to dismiss a careless employe.

Three drunken tramps, arrested by Officer Lee, were sent to jail by the mayor this morning.
